

- Horgan, G. (2009), “‘That child is smart because he’s rich’: the impact of poverty on young children’s experiences of school”, International Journal of Inclusive Education, sv. 13, č. 4.
- IFIIE (Institute for Teacher Training and Educational Research and Innovation) (2011), Overcoming School Failure: Policies that Work, Spanish National Report, Ministerstvo školství, Španělsko. www.oecd.org/edu/equity
- Ingram M., Wolfe, R., Lieberman, J. (2007), “The Role of Parents in High-Achieving Schools Serving Low-Income, At-Risk Populations”, Education and Urban Society, sv. 39, č. 4, str. 479-497.
- Ingvarson, L., Rowe, K. (2007), “Conceptualising and evaluating teacher quality: substantive and methodological issues”, Australian Journal of Education, sv. 52, č. 1, str. 5-35.
- Ministerstvo školství a dovedností Irsko (bude publikováno), Overcoming School Failure: Policies that Work, National Report Ireland. www.oecd.org/edu/equity
- Jacob, B., Ludwig, J. (2008), Improving Educational Outcomes for Poor Children, NBER Working Paper č. 14550, National Bureau of Economic Research, Cambridge, MA.
- Johnson, S.M., and S.E. Birkeland (2003), “Pursuing a ‘sense of success’: New teachers explain their career decisions”, American Educational Research Journal, sv. 40, č. 3, str. 581-617.
- Johnson, S.M., a kol. (2004), “The Support Gap: New Teachers’ Early Experiences in High-Income and Low-Income Schools”, Education Policy Analysis Archives, sv. 12, č. 61.
- Kang, N., Hong, M. (2008), “Achieving excellence in teacher workforce and equity in learning opportunities in South Korea”, Educational Researcher, č. 37, str. 200-207.
- Kieffer, M., Marinell, W., Stephenson, N. (2011), “The Middle Grades Student Transitions Study: Navigating the Middle and Preparing Students for High School Graduation”, Working Brief, New York University.
- Krueger, A. (2002), “Understanding the magnitude and effect of class size on student achievement” in Krueger A., E. Hanushek and J. King Rice (Eds.), the Class Size Debate, Economic Policy Institute: Washington D.C.
- Lachat, M., Smith, S. (2005), “Practices that Support Data Use in Urban High-Schools”, Journal of Education for Students Placed at Risk, sv. 10, č. 3.
- Lauer, P. a kol. (2006), “Out-of-School-Time Programs: A Meta-Analysis of Effects for At-Risk Students”, Review of Educational Research Summer 2006, sv. 76, č. 2, str. 275–313.
- Leithwood, K. (2010), “Turning around Underperforming School Systems”, a paper commissioned by the College of Alberta School Superintendents, College of Alberta School Superintendents.